"The idea of eternal return is a mysterious one" (Kundera)

Man has seen its empires rise and fall, shattered by tragedy and human greed throughout the ages. Now is a prosperous time; now is a time of pseudo enlightenment where mankind is above all else and technology is its hammer. But beyond us is energy, structure, and matter. The idea of eternal return is now clear; the age of matter is upon us. From dust we came and thus we will return.

An eclectic approach to electronic music composition within a genre saturated by sub-categorization and often devoid of aesthetic purpose, Triomphe De La Matière is a reaction to an ongoing process created over fifty years ago with the discovery of nuclear fusion. Triomphe De La Matière roams through dark and expansive atmospheric reflections to heavy mechanical rhythms and brooding sub-base sonic landscapes constructing a cohesive perception of its main theme.

We are the end product of our surroundings.

PerfectionPlastic

PerfectionPlastic's journey through music started six years ago and has been flourishing in the underground noise/industrial/hardfloor scene ever since. Sebastien Gravel and Guillaume Bourassa, both natives of Montreal, produce aggressive electronic music with one purpose only: powerful sound!

From unique, collaborative live performances with Iszoscope and LCEDP to powerful solo performances at Montreal's C.O.M.A. Electro-noise Festival (years one through four) and consecutive U.S. debuts at the Providence Noise Festival, PerfectionPlastic have established themselves as an evolving mainstay within the North American industrial scene. With several self released titles under the RageDivision record label and an ever active live performance schedule the PerfectionPlastic sound will continue to hit your mind as hard as your body.
